

Samantha Reddington Barrister

Year of Call: 2015

Admitted as a Solicitor 1995

Inn of Court: Lincoln's Inn

Samantha is a specialist family law practitioner with expertise in complex public and private law children matters.

Prior to her call to the Bar in 2015 Samantha was a solicitor specialising in children's cases since 1999.

Samantha became a member of the Children Panel in 2002 and during her time as a solicitor acted on behalf of local authorities, parents and children.

Samantha acted for children in a high profile case which gained national attention due to the unique circumstances of the same during which time Samantha successfully obtained High Court injunctions on an ex-parte basis against the Media to prevent the continued harassment of and publicity surrounding the subject children. Securing in this particular case the co-operation/special dispensation of another Government to enable the children to gain permanency without the need for adoption.

During her practice as a solicitor Samantha was up until 2010 a partner in private practice Borneos, where she headed the Care Team across all 3 offices and the Family Team in Bedford.

From 2010 to 2015 Samantha practised as a freelance advocate.

Samantha is adept at challenging evidence including medical expertise from all disciplines and is well known both on the Midland and South Eastern Circuit.

Practice areas include:

- Public law for local authority
