Family law:

Stuart practises in all areas of family law, with a particular emphasis on proceedings involving children. For many years, Stuart maintained a high-level general common law practice, from which he gained invaluable experience, and which remains relevant to his current practice. His work included both the prosecution and defence of serious and complex criminal cases, as well as personal injury matters. In recent years, he has concentrated his practice exclusively in the field of family law.

Stuart is regularly instructed by local authorities, parents and children. Acting on behalf of local authorities often involves several parties and complex issues relating to serious non-accidental injury and/or death and complex medical issues. He has good case management skills and an ability to identify key issues and communicate effectively with professional and lay clients alike.

In private law proceedings, his practice comprises child arrangement work (formerly residence), contact issues, including cases of implacable hostility between parents.

Stuart is regularly instructed in financial remedy cases, including applications for maintenance pending suit, freezing injunctions as well the full range of hearings from First Appointment, through to Financial Dispute Resolution and Final Hearings.

In his approach to his work with clients, he is highly adaptable, has a sensitive and positive manner, takes pride in his work, seeks to work in partnership with both the lay and professional client in order to achieve the best possible outcome in a case, and aims to provide continuity of representation throughout. He is noted for his meticulous attention to detail.
